DCAD offers majors in animation, fine arts, graphic design, illustration and photography.

DCAD’s reputation as a rigorous two-year art and design foundation program is the result of an innovative partnership between Pratt Institute and the Corcoran College of Art + Design. DCAD offers students an Associate of Fine Arts degree which prepares graduates with real-world-ready talent as well as the opportunity to transfer to other leading art and design schools to pursue their Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.

DCAD is distinguished by a small, smart and creative campus community of 200 students. Our faculty of professional artists and designers provide meaningful mentorship for our students’ optimal artistic growth. Our welcoming, diverse campus provides opportunities for students to curate their own exhibitions, lead clubs and activities, and explore the arts and culture in Wilmington and beyond. In addition, an internship program offers students the opportunity to gain practical skills through real-world working experience. Through a variety of partnerships with other institutions of higher learning, DCAD students benefit from a firm foundation in art and design. Success starts at DCAD.
